ate Whole of Istria

Trieste and the neighboring towns of Mircanure and Opeins, both military being made for evacuation and that the military stores piled up there during the last few months are being transferred, partly toward the north at Laibach and partly toward the southeast Since the first Italian advance guards moved toward the frontler on the highway between Palmanovar and Cervig-nane the Austrian troops have slowly retreated to the Isonzo, though net with any intention of making a stand

It thus seems to be decided definitely that no resistance will be put up even for the important coast towns, and it is probable that Triest and the whole of Istria will be in the hands of the Italians before the fall, for it is impossible for Austria-Hungary not only to begin an offensive, but even to put up a vigorous and effective defence in this region.

In the Trentino district the situaion is almost similar. A feeble re-istance will be put up all along the ine, but with no intention or hope of leing able to resist the Italian adwance. The only point which is strong-ly defended is the Tyrol, where not only first class and experienced war-by defended is the lyfol, where holy only first class and experienced wartried troops have been concentrated, but where also the whole male population has been put under arms and placed on the frontier. An Italian invasion of Trentino and even of Istria under present conditions is not considered anything out of the way, for, according to a staff officer, the final issue will not be decided in this region. "The great battles of the war with Italy," he said, will be fought in the mountains, and if we succeed in the north and Germany is able to place her new forces at our disposal a great struggle will develop for the invaded territory. The only trouble is the many its in the game. One really can't see hew Germany will be in a position to send reinforcements to oppose the army of two or three millions which the Italians will throw against us in four or live months' time.

Austrians Bring Up 45,000 Troops-Men Hurled Down Precipice During Battle.

Geneva (vis Paris), June 18 .- With Monfalcone and Gradisca in their hands, the Italians have begun an attack on Gorizia, further up the Isonzo River and one of the Austrians' most strongly fortified frontier positions. The Italians have already cut the communications to the north and south of Austrians Likely to Evacu- the town, so that it now depends en-disca, twenty-two miles northwest of Trieste and ten miles east of the Italian fine frontier.

The railway lines running north and south of the city have been intergraphed and the only communication remaining between Goritz and the rest of the Austrian Empire is by a long and difficult mountain road along the Chiapovano Valley.

Documents found on Austrian officers taken prisoners indicate that it was the plan of the Austrian General Staff to prevent the Italians crossing the Isonzo River between Tolmino and Goritz. The capture of Plava by Italian troops, however, upset the Austrian plans for maintaining an insurmountable barrier in that part of the front through the co-operation of the towns of Tolmino and Gradisca.

Vienna (via London), June 13.—The following official communication was issued to-day:

"On the Isonzo River a serious battle has been in progress the last two days, especially near Plava. An attempt of a brigade on June 11 to occupy the eastern bank ended in the retreat of the enemy. Early yesterday the Italians again crossed the river. After a heavy battle our troops succeeded in repulsing them. Being reinforced, the enemy succeeded in maintaining their position, before which more than 400 dead Italians are lying.

"In the Carinthian and Tyrol frontier districts artillery battles are continuing."

Fortified Place Falls to Hundred Italians

Brescia (via Paris), June 13.—The first train of wounded Italians from the Trentino front arrived here to-day. It had been transformed into a hower of flowers, each berth being literally covered with them. The wounded soldiers said the flowers had been sent to them by their mothers and sweethearts. All the men said they were anxious to get back to the front.

Arsenal at Pola Hit by Italian Airmen

Rome (via Paris), June 18.—The arsenal at the Austro-Hungarian naval station of Pola, on the Adriatic, has been almost entirely destroyed by bombs dropped from an Italian airship, according to "Il Messagero." There were at the time in the arsenal ten warships, including one battleship, two cruisers and several submarines. Some of these vessels are supposed to have been damaged.

The Official Journal to-day publishes the decree seizing merchant ships of

The Austrians are reported to have brought up 45,000 troops and 84 batteries along the Isonro River in the last few days.

Severe fighting is reported by the Austrians on Monteparalba, which rises to a height of 8,000 feet. Alpinists of both the Austrians and Lallan forces the war.

The failure of these efforts is due to the valor and admirable dash of the Italian troops, coupled with the skilful strategy of their commanders, but the fact remains that the Austrians, although unsuccessful, are fighting well.

Petrograd, June 13.—Official reports received here from the army head quarters in the Caucasus say that the Russians are pushing the Turks back in the direction of Olti and are occupying the Turkish positions. A heavy counter attack made by the Turks at Zinatchor was repulsed.

The dispatches say that during a successful engagement in the Valley of Oltichait two hundred Cossacks charged on horseback to the trenches, where they dismounted and put the Turks to the sword.

On that day Rome, June 13.—The impression that Italian cavalry entered Gradisca, and the Austrian army opposing the Italian advance from the Carbo Alps to the sea is weak and demoralized and merely passively resisting is belied by the latest war bulletins, these affording alleged the following day. The Italians found the population starving The people had been without food for two people had been without food for two days, and it was therefore decided to evacuate the town and convey the inhabitants to Udine. The Austrians hoped that the Italians would occupy Gradisca, and they posted heavy artillery on the opposite bank of the Isonio with the object of bombarding the positions of the Italians. Instead of renaining in their newly won positions, nowever the Italians advanced toward Monfalcone, compelling the Austrians o beat a hasty retreat, seeing that the talian movement threatened them with the delayed announcement, which was given out only when Gradisca was solidly occupied and fortified.

Another notable Italian success which will undoubtedly hasten the general advance is the destruction of the dike of the canal at Monfalcone which would have enabled the Austrians to flood a vest tract of country near the sea, but a single Italian battery of heavy artillery with a few accurate shots upset vast tract of country near the sea, but a single Italian battery of heavy artillery with a few accurate shots upset the enemy's plans and opened the way for an Italian advance toward Trieste. This town, however, is not the immediate objective of the Italians. Obviously the advance along the line from Tolmein to Monfalcone aims at Gorizia, the occupation of which would end the first phase of the preliminary campaign. What would follow this is naturally unknown, but there is every reason to believe that important developments are bound to follow, and this the Austrians are already realizing.

The Italian army, it is to be noted, is only 175 miles distant from Vienna, and the Austrian capital is thus threatened more closely on the southwest than by the Russians on the northeast, while the Italian advance along the eastern boundary of the Tyrol, which, only sixty miles long, is crossed by two railways. If these are cut it will mean the complete isolation of Austria's westernmost provinces. The efforts concentrated against the Italian advance can be easily understood when the imminent peril threatening Austria's western provinces is realized.

(By Cable to The Tetrune.)

Chiasso, June 13.—The continued Italian advance in Eastern Friuli is causing much inquietude in Vienna, according to reports from that city. The Isonzo advance and the Italian occupation of towns that have never ceased their demands to be rejoined to Italy are fraught with high political consequences. It is recognized that the operations in Trentino, thoush perhaps less spectacular, are of the greatest military importance. The results already achieved will prove to be of immense value should the Austrians succeed later, with or without the help of Germany, in organizing serious resistance. [By Cable to The Tritune.]

Busoni Plays to a World-Wide Audience

Sitting at a grand piano in a quiet studio in Aeolian Hall, Ferruccio Busoni, the great modern master of Bach and Liszt, the foremost pianist of Italian birth, played to the greatest audience that has ever thrilled to the glories of any musician's art.

The flashing intensity of the Liszt "Paganini" Etudes, the sombre minors and the frenzied climaxes of the Nineteenth Rhapsodie, the wonderful, heart-stirring bell-tones of "La Campanella" throbbed through the reaches of the studio and beat upon deaf walls.

Such music as it is rarely given to any pianist to make—and unheard by any save two members of The Acolian staff.

Yet this wonder music will electrify the minds of thousands, will ring forth in hundreds of homes. The children of tomorrow's generation will find new beauties in it-the power of these interpretations will place this artist's name among the

As Busoni sits at the pianoforte calling forth his magnificent harmonies, an instrument of remarkable ingenuity records with the precision and accuracy of electric impulses every phrase every sweeping run and crashing climax, every rubato, every shade of power and elusive quality of tone.

And presently this wonderful record is placed in the Duo-Art Pianola, and the artist listens critically while "fingers of air" reproduce every touch of his fingers upon keys, bringing forth again, his exquisite interpretations with utmost fidelityeven to the last subtle emphasis of note or chord Just as he hears, so countless thousands shall hear the art of Busoni revoiced by this great modern pianoforte.

The DUO-ART Pianola

"Brings into your home the greatest art of the greatest pianists and composers"

TOT only Busoni, but every great pianist will in turn be party to this modern miracle which shall record his art for the multitudes that no concert hall can contain-and preserve it, that it may live after him.

But the office of the Duo-Art Pianola lies not alone in bringing to you the master-work of the great pianists-this wonderful instrument places within your grasp, also, the power yourself to read and interpret the works of the great composers-makes yours the musical art of all time.

You can play with a skill and facility acquired by very few pianists. For The Duo-Art Pianola is a player-piano of such wonderful power-of such remarkable scope of expression control-that you have at your command every device and means of artistic piano-playing possessed by the most talented musician.

And the extraordinary simplicity of the instrument enables you to play it well-to exercise all of the great technical capacity it provides for you, almost at the very first.

The art of the pianist, the art of the composer, truly they have been made yours by The Duo-Art Pianola-and as wholly as the art of the author and the painter by the wonderful artistry of printing.

Yours is not a home without good books-without beautiful pictures. How long will it be a home without wonderful music-now that music is as available as literature?

We cordially invite you to come in to hear this newest marvel of the musical world-The Duo-Art Pianola. Informal Recitals are in progress nearly every hour of the day-so opportunity is unlimited. Programs include numbers by the season's most popular concert pianists. Enjoy a half-hour of beautiful and interesting music, and feel not in the least obligated.
